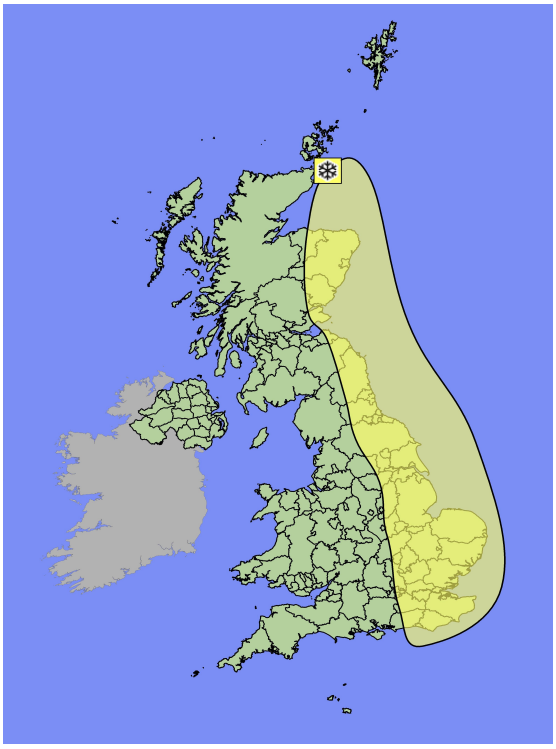
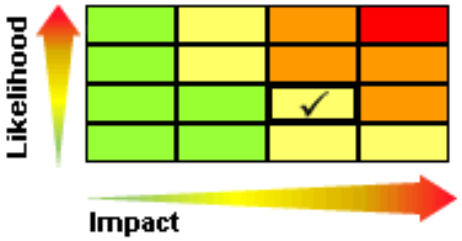
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A retreating area of low pressure will leave a showery east to northeasterly airflow across eastern parts of the UK, with the air cold enough for snow. Accumulations of snow will be very variable, but some places could see 5-10 cm of fresh snow, particularly just inland from North Sea coasts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Snow

Valid from 00:05 on Tue, 15th Jan 2013 until 23:55 on Tue, 15th Jan 2013

Snow showers will affect parts of the east on Tuesday, in some places adding several centimetres to existing accumulations. Over Scotland and northern England showers may fall as sleet near coasts. Ice will also be a hazard in these areas.

The public are advised to be aware of the risk of disruption to transport.
